

The "no call" list in Indiana has been the best thing to come along in our household in a long time. It would be wrong for the FCC to reduce the effectiveness of the Indiana law with a weaker Federal ruling. I have received maybe three calls since the inception of the Indiana law since January. Prior to this we probably received eight to ten unwanted calls weekly. This has been a highly effective law which should be left alone.

Thank You

Scott Green